Going across the top row of each chart are pounds (lb). For example, the second chart is for 4 to 7 pounds. Going down the leftmost column ounces (oz) are listed: the range is always 0oz to 15oz, since there are 16 oz in a pound; that is, the range for 6 pounds is 6lb0oz (baby weighs exactly 6 lbs) to 6lb15oz (baby is 1oz shy of 7 lbs). To use the chart, locate the nearest matching weight in grams (g) and then look at the top row of the conversion chart for the corresponding pounds and the leftmost column for ounces, and combine the two. For example, if you are 32 weeks pregnant, and your ultrasound estimates that your baby's weight is 1710 grams, the closest matching weight in grams is 1701g: per the topmost column, that's 3 pounds and the leftmost column 12 ounces, so he or she weighs approximately 3lbs and 12oz at 32 weeks! According to the CDC (based on 2015 Data), 83% of babies born in the U.S. have a birth weight from 2500 (5lb 8oz) to 4000 (8 lb 13oz) grams. Below 2500 grams is considered low birth weight (LBW), below 1500 (3lb 5oz) grams is very low birth weight (VLBW), and above 4000 grams is large birth weight (the technical terms is fetal macrosomia). Generally, statistics on birth weight, and infant weight are provided in grams. x Enter the weight in grams below to get the value converted to pounds. Results in Pounds: 1 g = 0.002205 lb1 g = 0 lb 0.03528 oz To convert a gram measurement to a pound measurement, multiply the weight by the conversion ratio. Since one gram is equal to 0.002205 pounds, you can use this simple formula to convert: pounds = grams × 0.002205 The weight in pounds is equal to the grams multiplied by 0.002205. For example, here's how to convert 500 grams to pounds using the formula above. 500 g = (500 × 0.002205) = 1.102311 lb Grams and pounds are both units used to measure weight. Keep reading to learn more about each unit of measure. A gram is the mass/weight equal to 1/1,000 of a kilogram and is roughly equivalent to the mass of one cubic centimeter of water. The gram, or gramme, is an SI unit of weight in the metric system. Grams can be abbreviated as g; for example, 1 gram can be written as 1 g. Pounds One pound is defined as a unit of mass/weight equal to 16 ounces, or 0.45359237 kilograms. One pound is equal to 7,000 grains in the avoirdupois or apothecaries' systems.[1] The pound is a US customary and imperial unit of weight. A pound is sometimes also referred to as a common ounce. Pounds can be abbreviated as lb, and are also sometimes abbreviated as lbs, lbm, or #. For example, 1 pound can be written as 1 lb, 1 lbs, 1 lbm, or 1 #. baby grams to pounds conversion chart. baby weight conversion chart grams to pounds
